It is a question as to what a lot of editors will do next week after the election is over and Topeka stops sending editorials and articles about politics.
The way editors will let these fellows at Topeka use their papers is sometimes surprising. People get awful tired of reading so much politics.

Have your house, barn or stable insured against fire, cyclone or tornado to-day by Fred Miller who will put you in a company that never quibbles over losses. 47-1f.

Loafing on the streets and trying to get an education through a pipe stem or cigarette is a mighty poor way, while there is such good schools here.
A lot of failures have tried the trick but it has never worked out yet. There is only one way that it can turn out.

South Chestnut Street.

Mr. Thomas tells that he took down the fence across his land where they want to open a street under a compact with the Councilmen that a conference would be held. Instead, last week council passed an ordinance opening a street through his private property without awarding any damages or satisfactory settlement, and he again closed it last Friday and put up the sign, "Private property, go west to section road leading to bridge," and put up lamps at night. Since then all teams have driven on the section line, through the kindness of Mr. Hussard and Mr. Thomas, owners of the land, and no one is complaining. In fact many prefer it as it is a straight line from the bridge instead of the ugly curve. Now, it becomes a question, shall the taxpayers of the CITY pay a big sum for this street or go west about a block, just as they do on the north side of town, and lay out a road along the section line, the city and county uniting on paying the small amount asked for by the owners and allowed by the road viewers? A couple years ago nearly every farmer in the south side of the county signed a road petition asking for the section line road. But more serious to many taxpayers is the question of entering into a law suit, with a long drawn out fight and chance of losing for the supreme court (48th Kansas) in the case of To-neka extending a street in that city, decided that a street could not be laid through private property where another roadway close by could be as easily used. No one will deny, no matter how much we all want the road, that the road through the middle of his farm is a great damage to pay nothing of the dust and damage done to adjoining property. It is said that being in the city he must pay the back city taxes and in turn he asks pay of the city for using the road and damaging his property these many years. Thus it is a question of retaliation, and it seems it would be far better for the city to join with the county and lay out a road on the section line to which Thomas seems perfectly willing.
